FOR THE DIOCESE OF BURLINGTON

Diocese to observe 2017 as "Year of Creation"

Similar to the global Year of Mercy announced by Pope Francis last year which entertained a heightened focus on the role of mercy in the Catholic faith, the diocesan wide Year of Creation will entertain an intentional, heightened focus on ecological justice. Various events, initiatives and resources will be made available to parishes and Catholic schools to better educate on and encourage the embracing of Pope Francis' message in his 2015 encyclical, "Laudato Si': On Care for Our Common Home."

This is the second encyclical of Pope Francis. It is addressed to "every person living on this planet" for an inclusive dialogue about how people are shaping the future of the created world. He calls everyone to acknowledge the urgency of pursuing ecological justice and to join him in embarking on a new path based in integral ecology.

Burlington Bishop Christopher Coyne invites all Catholics to join with him in celebrating this "Year of Creation" in the diocese.

He noted the pope's emphasis that concern for the created world is not optional, but an integral part of Church teaching on social justice. "While it has been nearly two years since its publication, I think it is time for the Church here in Vermont to study, ponder and begin to implement much of what the pope calls for" in the document, the bishop said.

The diocese also has formed a partnership with Commons Energy that allows for low-cost energy efficiency audits and energy efficiency/renewable energy projects on many church-owned buildings throughout the state.

Additionally, one of the first steps the Diocese of Burlington has taken at 55 Joy Drive in South Burlington, the diocesan headquarters, to counteract a "throwaway culture" and set an example of ecologically responsible practices is to adopt the practice of composting—a simple way to support circular models of production and consumption.

"Vermont's 118,000 Catholics can make a sustainable impact on the state of the created world and its creatures. Furthermore, if the Diocese of Burlington's Year of Creation is successful in raising awareness of and action toward ecological justice, it can serve as an encouraging example for other Catholic dioceses and communities of faith throughout the country and the globe. There are an estimated 1.2 billion Catholics on Earth—just think of what could be achieved if we committed to caring for the created world together," said Stephanie Clary, mission outreach and communication coordinator.

A Year of Creation Committee comprised of scientists, activists and people of faith has been formed to assist with this initiative. Committee members include: Brian Tokar, lecturer in Environmental Studies at the University of Vermont, Director of the Institute for Social Ecology, and board member at 350Vermont; David Mullin, executive director of Green Mountain Habitat for Humanity; Phil Lawson, Director of Evangelization and Catechesis for the Roman Catholic Diocese of Burlington; Ellen Kane, Director of Development and Communication for the Roman Catholic Diocese of Burlington; Fr. Thomas Houle, OFM, pastor of St. Peter's Church in Rutland (first parish in the diocese to adopt renewable energy); Betsy Hardy, coordinator of Vermont Interfaith Power and Light; James Ehlers, executive director of Lake Champlain International, Inc. and founder of Water Warriors; Stephanie Clary, Mission Outreach and Communication Coordinator for the Roman Catholic Diocese of Burlington; and Mary Quinn, RSM, resident of Mercy Farm and member of Mercy Ecology, Inc.

A PRAYER FOR OUR EARTH (Pope Francis, "Laudato Si")

All-powerful God, you are present in the whole universe and in the smallest of your creatures.

You embrace with your tenderness all that exists.

Pour out upon us the power of your love, that we may protect life and beauty.

Fill us with peace, that we may live as brothers and sisters, harming no one.

O God of the poor, help us to rescue the abandoned and forgotten of this Earth, so precious in your eyes.

Bring healing to our lives, that we may protect the world and not prey on it, that we may sow beauty, not pollution and destruction.

Touch the hearts of those who look only for gain at the expense of the poor and the Earth.

Teach us to discover the worth of each thing, to be filled with awe and contemplation, to recognize that we are profoundly united with every creature as we journey towards your infinite light.

We thank you for being with us each day.

Encourage us, we pray, in our struggle for justice, love and peace.

AMEN.
